PROLOGUE

Beginnings, however essential, are seldom nothing more than a start. We have been provided with a beginning. We must now accept the challenges of development and growth. We must endeavor to keep alive the spirit found in those who came before us. We must rely on their guidance and profit by their mistakes.

But we must also make a name for ourselves: prove we are capable of our own creativity, wisdom, and strength. We must renew the faith, hope, and love for learning already instilled in us. We must proceed to broaden and deepen these noble qualities by adding our own special talents.

We must give of ourselves to insure that the beginning becomes more than a mere start. A spark has been lighted; now we must kindle the flame.

RALPH E. NEILL

As chief administrator, Mr. Neill has a variety of roles to play. During long and tedious hours of work he never fails to be a friend to anyone that may need him. He gives to Olympic a sense of dignity, of worth, and of purpose, assets vital to our existence.

ADMINISTRATION AND ASSISTANCE

The friendly smile of Mr. Poe displays to each and everyone of us the personal interest he takes in students as individuals. He gains personal friendship through guidance and respect. His goal is to help students recognize and assume responsibilities.

The office staff also includes the secretary and bookkeeper. We're all aware of the dedicated patience and diligent work of each.

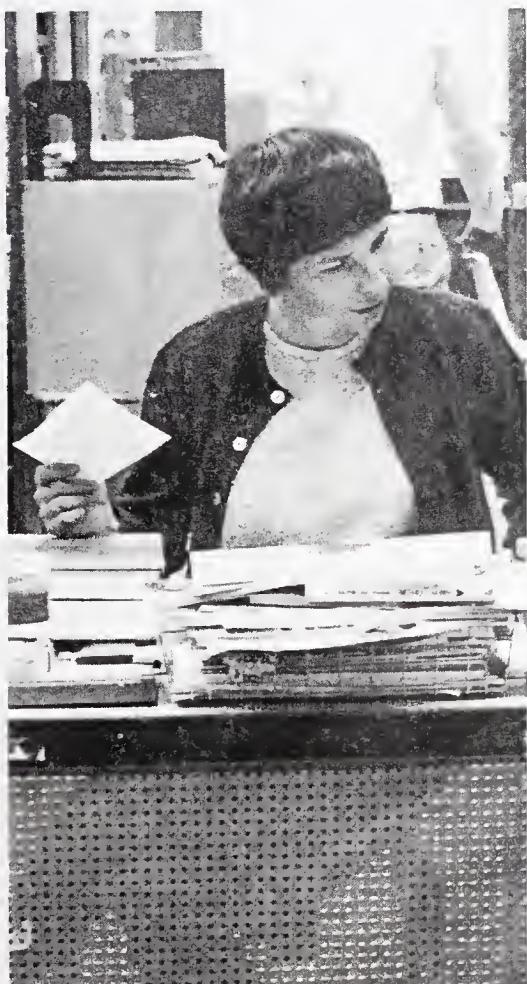

Mrs. Norman and Mrs. Armstrong work hand in hand while solving office problems.

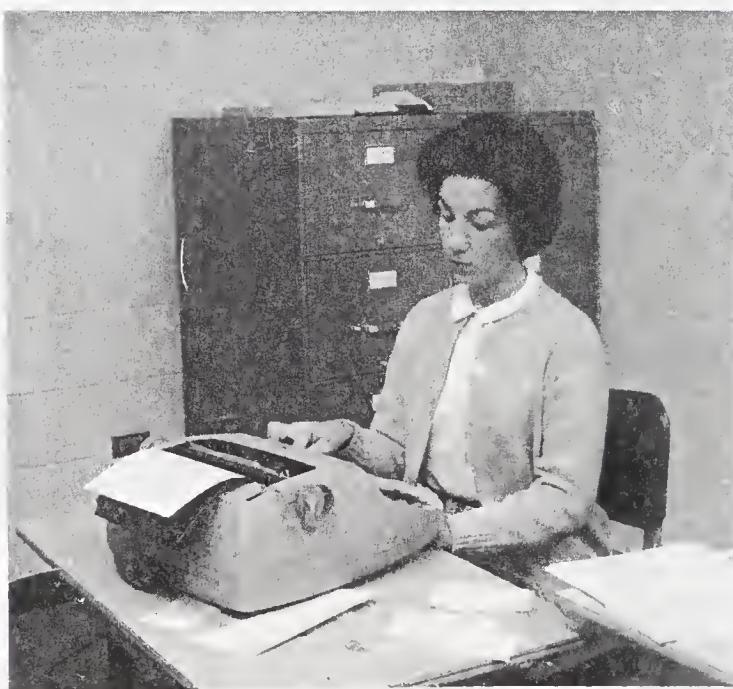

Mrs. Ballard assists Miss Meggs in student placement.

Miss Whittle directs library affairs.

The chief interest of the counselors of Olympic High is to guide you toward a better understanding of yourself and your relationship to society. The encouragement given to you by them help the development of your individual talents.

The librarians also encourage and aid you in the use of your leisure time. Their aim is to broaden your interest and thus benefit Olympic as a whole.

ENGLISH BRIGHTENS THE FLAME

"My dears, you have it all wrong!"

Olympic seniors interpret the Canterbury Tales.

English tests challenge sophomores.

"A toast to dear Olympic . . . "

English, the only course required for three years at Olympic, many opportunities for college preparation because of our strong English department. English II includes a study of language, literature, and composition. The main types of literature—short stories, poetry, nonfiction, drama, the literary epic, and the novel are covered in the course study.

English III continues to emphasize the relation between literature, language, and composition. Emphasis in literature is on the works of American authors. This course is designed to give a better understanding of our American heritage through the examination of our literature. Fourth year classes learn research techniques and write term papers.

COURSES IMPROVE COMMUNICATION

"Is French all that funny?"

Spanish, Latin, and French are offered to all college bound students. One to four years may be taken.

First year students are orientated to the basic structure of the language. Emphasis is placed on accurate pronunciation.

In second year courses emphasis is shifted toward reading, writing and conversation in which the student creates his own response.

Emphasis is on reading in the third year of the language.

Reading is done both intensively and extensively in the advanced fourth year classes.

The culture of countries involved is traced throughout all four years.

ROWTH THROUGH PAST EXPERIENCE

World and United States history courses are required by both the State Department and Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools.

The goal of the World history course is to give the students broader concept of the world historically, critically and geographically.

The United States history course generally traces the stories of our United States from the early days of exploration and colonization to the present.

Mr. Parker instructs U. S. history class.

Mrs. St. Clair observes student reporter.

EXPLORATION OF MAN AND LIFE

Biology Students observe nature.

The Olympic curriculum presents numerous science courses to its students. The senior science course introduces the principles dealing with matter and energy. Chemistry I classes are based on lab work and a study in changes and structure of matter. Chemistry II continues the necessary fundamentals needed for future chemistry. Lab work in physics examines the laws of motion. Biology I, required for graduation, guides sophomores in their study of nature. Biology II furthers research.

Chemistry student learns of weights and measures.

MODERN MATH AND THE FUTURE

The math department of Olympic has courses that meet each student's need whether he is exploring higher mathematics or learning the basic principles. Through algebra-trigonometry, the development of a systematic method of thinking is encouraged. Two years of algebra and one year of geometry are required as prerequisites for algebra-trigonometry. For the students who wish to follow a college preparatory schedule, Algebra I and II and geometric essentials are taught. To prepare students for effective office performance, business math is available. A general math course is offered to those students not wishing to continue their math.

Students gain knowledge in geometric fundamentals.

COURSES INSPIRE VOCATIONS

Cosmetology works many wonders.

Students of Olympic have a wonderful opportunity to move into a career at the high school level. Cosmetology courses are offered to those who are interested in the study of this aesthetic art.

Junior and senior students whose career interests lie in the field of electronics, Olympic has a very useful course in Electricity-Electronics. This course prepares students for advanced work.

"We create our own Frankensteins."

TECHNICAL ABILITIES TAUGHT

Family living class prepares for the future.

Business Administration Department offers courses in Bookkeeping, Business English and Communications and Business Law. They are strongly recommended to students following a business program. Secretarial students strive to master typewriting, shorthand, and general office practice. Religious department provides a course in the basic understanding and appreciation of the Bible.

Home Economics department gives girls experience in the fundamentals of homemaking and family planning.

Fine Arts, drama, music and creative art are offered to students so they may have a chance to express themselves.

"Let's go Trojans, we want some action," is the familiar slogan as Olympic's cheerleaders arouse school spirit at pep rallies and sports events. They also make "pep posters" and decorate bulletin boards in an effort to spur their team on to win. These girls are loyal Trojans in the truest form. Representative of the students' idea of spirit, the cheerleaders accept their responsibility with dedication and sincerity. Through victory and defeat, the Trojan cheerleaders urge the crowd for more support, and the cry for victory is never abandoned.

STUDENT COUNCIL DECORATES TREE

Students are allowed to leave study hall to decorate Olympic's Christmas tree.

Olympic's student council, a vital organization, is the voice and unified actions of the students. Consisting of an executive council, class presidents, and homeroom representatives, this body insures each student the benefits of participation. The council serves the school by sponsoring countless activities and projects. The work of student council committees produced a Homecoming Dance, Sadie Hawkins Day and Dance, and a Mock Faculty Show. Sending packages to soldiers in Vietnam plus the sponsoring of a clean-up campaign were only two ways the student council proved its usefulness to the school and to the community.

The Inter-Club Council is an affiliate organization of the Student Council, made up of the heads of various organizations and all club presidents. It is the duty of this council to co-ordinate all club and organization activities. Among other things, the Inter-Club Council approves charters for new clubs and helps to see that all clubs stay active.

Enrollment dues were sent to the International Red Cross to be used in disaster areas, and boxes packed with articles were dispatched to the 49th Hospital in Vietnam. In December the Red Cross held a raffle to raise funds. Along with its other activities, this service organization also co-ordinates projects for clubs such as F.H.A. and V.I.C.A.

ACADEMICS AND ATHLETICS

On two occasions during the school year, a select group of juniors and seniors are inducted into the National Honor Society on the basis of academic excellence and good citizenship. An overall average of 89 must be maintained before a student is eligible for membership. The reputation of the National Honor Society is based on its motto which stresses the qualities of service, leadership, scholarship and character. In addition to conducting assemblies in which new members were tapped, this organization also compiled and published Olympic's first student directory.

Maintaining a B average in three semesters of Spanish is necessary for membership in the La Sociedad Honoraria Hispanica. This organization of the top Spanish students at Olympic co-ordinates its activities with those of the Spanish Club.

TORCH STAFF MEETS A DEADLINE

When school started in September, work was already underway for the '68 edition of the TORCH. Deciding on an appropriate theme, the first undertaking of the staff, was soon to be followed by countless other duties. Major assignments such as designing the cover, opening section, dividers, and the numerous other sections were co-ordinated by the Editor-in-Chief and became the responsibility of the individual editors. Other members of the staff assisted the various editors in writing and typing copy, and aided in group identification and alphabetizing. Financial matters, which ranged from selling ads to selling the annual itself, were handled by members of the business staff.

Meeting deadlines demanded the combined efforts of the entire staff. By working diligently, often long after the school day had ended, staffers successfully produced the second edition of the TORCH.

TRUMPET FEATURES SUPERLATIVES

Members of the TROJAN TRUMPET staff learned early in the year that it took more than a "nose for news" to produce a successful high school newspaper. Once a story was secured, copy blocks, headlines, and captions posed new and varied problems. Publishing a paper each month, the staff was forced to meet frequent deadlines which required the hard work and cooperation of every staff member. Aside from meeting deadlines, the staff was faced with the task of selling ads in order to pay production costs. However, by changing paper and type, expenses were reduced.

The ingenuity and creativity of the staffers were responsible for the addition of several new features to the TROJAN TRUMPET. These added improvements caught student interest and added greatly to the success of the paper. Both interesting and informative, the TROJAN TRUMPET continues to be an excellent communicator of school and local events.

The basic qualities of successful teaching are studied, identified, and developed by members of the Future Teachers of America. The main objective of F.T.A., to present accurate information on vocational opportunities in education, was accomplished through several guest speakers. These included a foreign exchange student who spoke to the club on school systems in other countries. The club's major project for the year was Teacher's Appreciation Week, during which time F.T.A. members expressed gratitude to our teachers for their many contributions.

Girls with previous experience in Home Economics constitute the membership in the Future Homemakers of America. This club provides girls with the opportunity to better themselves as homemakers and as members of a community. During the year, Olympic's F.H.A. participated in the District Rally in Gastonia, and at Christmas time the girls delivered gifts to a rest home in the community. A Mother-Daughter Banquet held in April highlighted the year for F.H.A. members.

Making students aware of the customs of France is the primary aim of Olympic's newly organized French Club. French Club activities for the year included sponsoring a French day at Olympic and attending a play given entirely in French.

The purpose of the Spanish Club is to present members with a better understanding of Spanish speaking countries and an opportunity to practice the Spanish they learn in class. With the help of the Spanish National Honor Society, the Spanish Club successfully sponsored a Pan American Day, which included a related assembly and a Spanish Mercado.

The Olympic High School Choir, an outstanding musical group, performed many times throughout the year. Their annual Christmas Concert, consisting of many favorite carols and a cantata, was given at the school and various churches in the community. The choir also competed in the Annual Competition at Ovens Auditorium and produced a highly entertaining Spring Concert. To climax a most successful year, the choir, in conjunction with the drama department, presented a musical, L'il Abner in the spring.

Early in the year, two additions were made to the marching performers at Olympic. A drill team and majorettes were chosen in the fall, and soon began learning routines to accompany the band. Besides adding color and enthusiasm to the band's performances, the lettergirls, majorettes and drill team also play a large part in promoting school spirit and sportsmanship. In keeping with tradition, the band and marching groups performed during half time at football and basketball games and participated in the Veteran's Day and Carousel Parades.

The main objective of the vocational programs offered at Olympic is to prepare interested students for a career in the world of business. In brick masonry, carpentry and electronics, students receive instruction and work experience necessary in order to become an apprentice in their respective fields. Besides learning various techniques of hair dyeing and shaping, cosmetology students acquire good business practices and professional ethics. COO students learn clerical and stenographic skills and practice office techniques through actual work experience. In addition to providing on-the-job training, ICT furnishes students with a technical study of the industry for which they are training. Distributive Education at Olympic is a carefully planned program designed to acquaint interested students with the mechanics of business, sales, management and distribution. Olympic's various programs in vocational education challenge young people who do not plan to attend college to achieve immediate success upon high school graduation.

Although weak in weight, experience, and number, Olympic's second varsity football team proved to be a fighter. Playing in the 4A league, Olympic's squad played against some of the best teams in the state. Most of these large and well established teams had a definite advantage, but our players fought all the way. Ending the season with a 6-0 victory over Second Ward put us on the right foot. Now, the future holds everything for a young promising team such as ours.

Trojan linemen provide adequate blocking.

Hey! What's goin' on down there?

The Junior Varsity team came on strong this year after having a winless season in their first year. Coaches of other teams proclaimed the young Trojans as one of the hardest hitting teams around. Winning five games against South, Hunter Huss, Independence, Catholic, and Country Day, the Trojans made it clear that they were no pushover. Next year's varsity squad will definitely benefit by receiving this new talent.

Placing fifth in the district, Olympic's cross country team improved markedly over the past year. The cross country team is looking to the future since the majority of runners are underclassmen. Under the direction of Coach Vernon Hedrick, the Trojan harriers should place even higher in the coming year.

Olympic's second year basketball squad ran into strong competition in the '68 season. Hindered mainly by height the Trojans compiled a record of 2-18. Roger Lemmond, James McConico and Jimmy Edwards were our strongest players averaging 9.1, 18, 16.5, points per game. Roger did an excellent job of controlling the backboard while Jimmy and James proved to be accomplished outside shooters.

A substantial amount of the team returning next year promises new strength. Being a young school, we are still looking for our first winning season and next year's team could be the one to do it.

Starting with a series of wins the Junior Varsity has had a fairly successful season. Although not blessed with height the J.V.'s have proved to be formidable foes in their league. Through long practice and many games these sophomore boys have gained the experience and knowledge they will need for varsity action next year.

Row 3-Ran Gager, Jack Blanks, Cliff Kelly, Frank McCullough, John Starkey, David Reinsel, Terry Short.

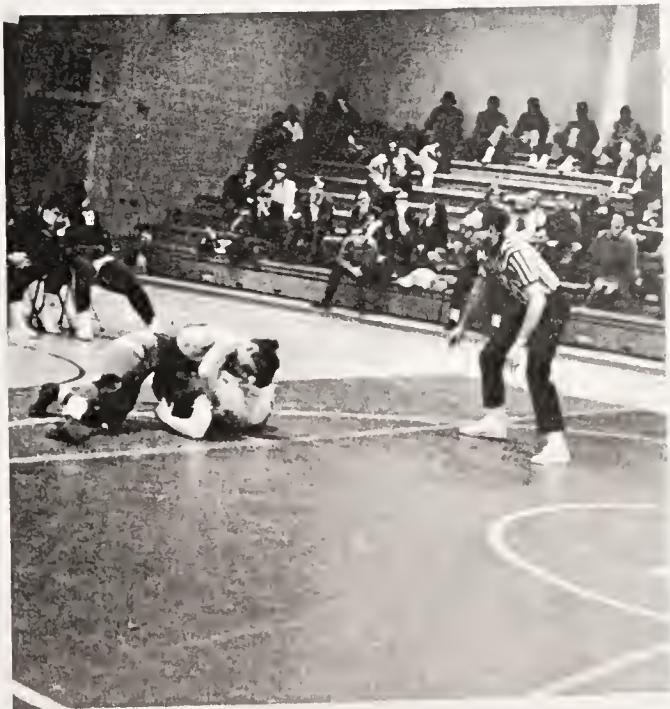

The '68 wrestling squad maintained good physical strength, but was hindered by lack of experience. Although the team won only one match, a number of matches were lost by a slim margin. Gary Wortman compiled an outstanding record of 12 - 0, while other Olympic wrestlers scored several wins. The sophomore and junior boys returning to the squad will add promise to next year's squad.

SENIOR CLASS

Secretary, Vicki Corbett and Treasurer, Gigi Wilson.

Realizing that one is a senior gives a student the wonderful feeling of accomplishment and of having reached a desired goal in life. We have worked twelve long years for this; yet it seems short a time now that it has passed. Many events have highlighted this final year. The arrival of senior rings, the ordering of ring cards and invitations, college board exams, homecoming—these bring back memories to the class of 1968. Funny how time flies! For some this is just a beginning—a preparation for college. For others it is the end of an education and the beginning of a vocational future. We have tried to set an example for underclassmen. As graduation draws nearer, Seniors will bid farewell to their days at Olympic. Each Senior will go his own way. He will cherish each precious moment ever spent at Olympic. Nothing can ever erase the times spent by the Senior class of 1968.

THE JUNIOR CLASS

The Junior Class returned to Olympic with a year of valuable experience behind them. Having already elected class officers, juniors were soon ready to begin a year of various activities. P.S.A.T. tests came early in October, producing results that served as a yardstick for measuring aptitude. Induction into the National Honor Society became a goal for many juniors and a reality for those who successfully met the requirements. The Junior-Senior proved to be a project that demanded the time and talents of many dedicated juniors. Committees were organized whose work resulted in a highly entertaining prom, long to be remembered by juniors and seniors alike. After an eventful year, the Class of '69 anticipates success as seniors. On their graduation day, this class, the first to attend Olympic all three years, will be especially proud.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Jim Byrum, President

Ronnie Talbert, Vice President

Karen Kuntz, Secretary

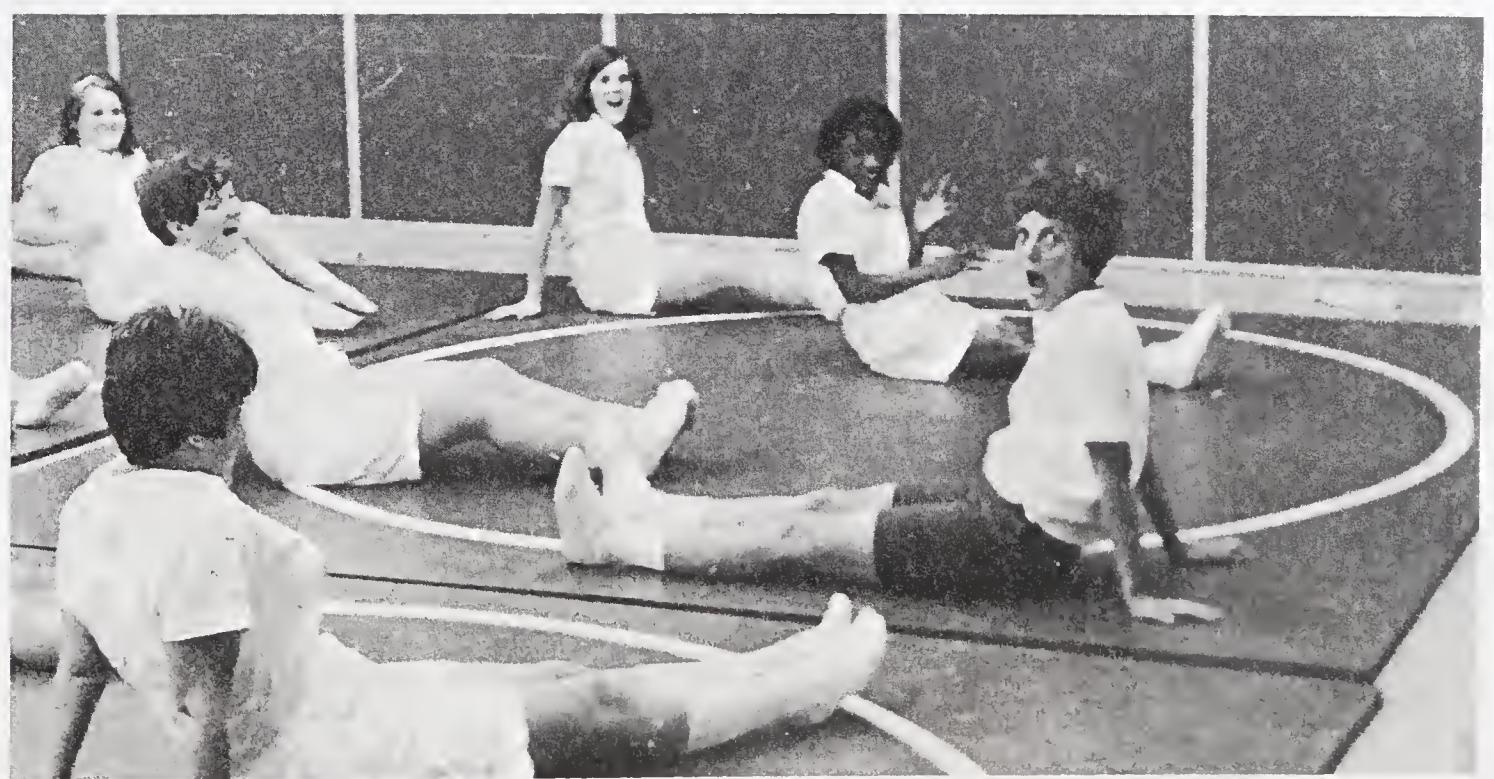

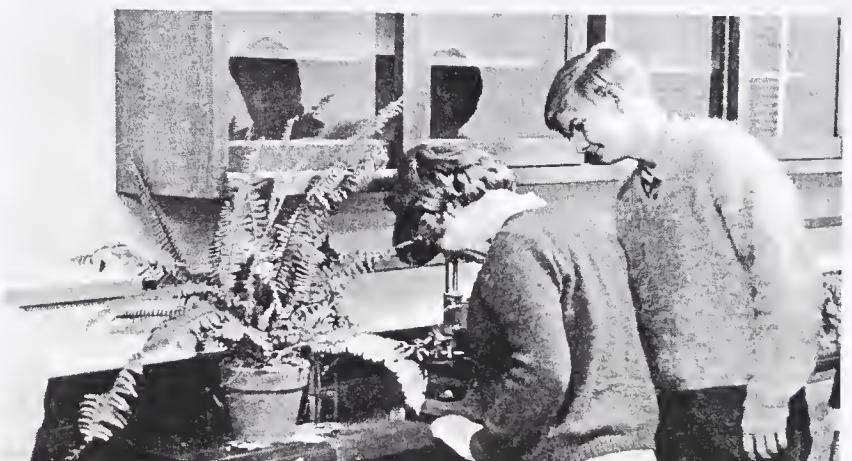

Annie Howell, Treasurer

As sophomores began their first year of high school, they realized that more was expected of them than ever before. They found themselves seeking more forms of knowledge, friendship, and challenge. To welcome the sophomores, the Student Council sponsored an assembly; this was the first official gathering of the Sophomore Class.

Adaption to a new schedule was part of the confusion of electing officers and promoting school spirit. These students immediately recognized the many opportunities Olympic offers, and took advantage of several.

The youngest class has done well this year, proving in many instances their maturity and satisfaction as students of Olympic High School.

From a dimly glowing splint
there emerged a tiny spark,
one so weak and timid that it would soon turn to ashes
if it were not nurtured, strengthened made to burn bold and bright.

Other hands cradled this flickering speck of light and through hope, courage and love developed it into a brilliant flame.
Then knowing their job was done,
other hands passed on to us
this flame of understanding, learning and faith.
This flame has been our guide,
our ever present vigil in time of need.
We hope we have used its light well,
performing our duty to care for this flame,
seeing that its brilliance was retained,
its glow kept warm and strong.

We know at times our hands have faltered allowing the flame to become weak,
but never did we let its light die,
We hope we have heightened its glow,
increased its strength,
held high its burning light.

Our hands should be proud.
We have kindled the flame.
